

Jennifer King

Jennifer possesses the right mix of technical expertise, practical knowledge, and a down-to-earth personality to guide you through the complexities of modern estate planning law. While practicing with two large downtown Seattle law firms—Foster Pepper PLLC and Davis Wright Tremaine, LLP—Jennifer noticed that many of her clients wanted to receive the service and expertise offered within a large firm, but in a more intimate setting. That beautifully complemented Jennifer's desire to enjoy the personal benefits that come with a small-firm environment, so in 2004 Jennifer left big-firm life, and she's never looked back! Among the values supporting the Three60 mission, Jennifer is most partial to the "relationships" value, and firmly believes that authenticity and approachability are at the heart of each client relationship. She recognizes that the estate planning and estate administration processes can be intimidating, so she takes the time to listen, understand, and explain in a way that helps clients feel comfortable and instills a sense of confidence in their decision making. Estate planning isn't merely planning for your death...if done right, it can be planning for your life as well. Jennifer and our Three60 team approach the planning process from that perspective, and we think that makes all the difference.
