

JENNIFER KING

Jennifer possesses the right mix of technical expertise, practical knowledge, and a down-to-earth personality to guide you through the complexities of modern estate planning law. While practicing with two large downtown Seattle law firms—Foster Pepper PLLC and Davis Wright Tremaine, LLP—Jennifer noticed that many of her clients wanted to receive the service and expertise offered within a large firm, but in a more intimate setting. That beautifully complemented Jennifer’s desire to enjoy the personal benefits that come with a small-firm environment, so in 2004 Jennifer left big-firm life, and she’s never looked back!

At Three60 Law Group, Jennifer and her fellow team members offer tried-and-true, high-level, high-touch planning and administration services, while at the same time providing innovative, up-to-the-minute tools and systems. Among the Three60 values that support our mission, Jennifer is most partial to the “relationships” value. Jennifer firmly believes that authenticity and approachability are at the heart of each client relationship. She recognizes that many are intimidated by the estate planning and estate administration processes, so she takes the time to listen, understand, and explain in a way that gives our clients a sense of comfort and confidence that they are doing what’s best for their family and for themselves. Plus, estate planning isn’t merely planning for your death...if done right, it can be planning for your life as well. Jennifer and our Three60 team approach the planning process from that perspective, we think that makes all the difference.
